III. New Business

A. Provost's Update

James Antony – Provost and Executive Vice President

Dr. James Antony, the new provost and executive vice president, began by highlighting his reasons for joining George Mason University, emphasizing its mission to broaden access to education and its rapid growth as a research institution. He shared insights from his first two months, where he has been actively listening and learning about the university's operations, programs, and budget. Key emerging priorities include streamlining faculty hiring, improving communication, and refining graduate education. Provost Antony welcomed Dr. Joshua Park as the new dean of the Mason Korea Campus and provided an update on the search for the next dean of the College of Science, with recruitment of candidates taking place now and in person interviews anticipated in the spring. Next Provost Antony provided an update on Just Societies and communicated his commitment to follow through with the plan that his predecessor began, which was outlined in a campus-wide note detailing the university's pause of any implementation of a requirement. Through this pause, the campus will engage in an assessment of the learning outcomes of all courses that are being offered that meet the intended Just Societies learning outcomes. He also offered an overview of one of the reports included in the materials on degrees awarded in the last academic year. He concluded his report with highlights of accomplishments by some of our students and faculty members.

B. Enrollment Update

David Burge – Vice President for Enrollment Management

Alan Byrd – Dean of Admissions

David Burge, vice president for enrollment management, and Alan Byrd, dean of Admissions, reported on admissions and enrollment for the fall 2024 semester. The enrollment report emphasized George Mason's growth trajectory, especially within Northern Virginia. The university is experiencing significant enrollment growth, with fall 2024 marking the largest first-year class in its history—over 4,500 students. The university now has over 29,000 undergraduates, 10,500 graduate students, and 650 law students, including those students enrolled at Mason Korea. He noted that while there is a nationwide decline in out-of-state master's students due to decreased international enrollment, in-state master's enrollment has slightly increased. George Mason is one of five Virginia universities experiencing growth, driven by Northern Virginia. Enrollment targets are aligned with state obligations, with instances given where the university has increased enrollment for these reasons. Despite the national "enrollment cliff" challenge, George Mason's leadership remains optimistic due to projected increases in high school graduates in Northern Virginia, and continued growth is supported by SCHEV-approved plans.

Alan Byrd provided an overview of the Mason Ambassador programs and student tour information, highlighting the ongoing training and meetings that they receive and how the program is unique from other institutions.
